The letter of Lady Byron's solicitors, already referred to in our cable dispatches, appears as follows in the London papers of the Bd instant:

Size As the solicitors of the descendants and representatives of the late Lady Noel Byron, for whose family we have acted for upward of half a century, we request your permission to publish in the columns of the Daily Ness the following observations relative to an article which has just appeared in Macasillan's Magazins.

The article in question is entitled "The True Story of Lady Byron's Life," and Mrs. It. B. Bowe is announced to be the writer of it. Of the paper listelf we should probably have abstained from taking any public notice if it had appeared in a less respectable journal than Macanillan, or if even in this periodical the authoriess had been allowed to tell her story without editorial preface or comment. The editor of Macasillan, however, has not only admitted Mrs. Stowe's article, but he has prefixed to it a note, in which he authoritatively proclaims to the world that "the paper on Lady Byron's life and relations with Lord Byron is the complete and authentic statement of the whole circumstances of that disastrous affair." Nay, more, "that this paper is, in fact, Lady Byron's own statement of the reasons which forced her to the separation which she so long reasisted." Again, the editor states that the contribution of Mrs. Stowe supplies "evidence at once new and direct" on Lady Byron's history.

We, as the family solicitors, beg most distinctly to state that the statement, of the facts connected with the separation, or that it cannot be regarded as Lady Byron's beginned to the result of the reasons which force the regarded as Lady Byron's intention of a conversation which story. We, as the family solicitors, beg most distinctly to state that the statement, of the facts connected with the separation, or that it cannot be regarded as Lady Byron's intention of a conversation which took place thirteen years ago, and her impressions of a manuscript which she per trust and confidence stated to have been reposed to her. 2. As inconsistent with her own recommendation to Lady Byron. 3. As an ignorant violatice (at least we shall incharity suppose Mrs. Stowe to be ignorant) of the express terms of Lady Byron's last will and testament.

1st. As relates to a breach of trust, Mrs. Stowe states that she was consulted in an interview which, to use her own words, "had almost the solemnity of a death-bed," not as to whether she would undertake a reduction of Lady Byron's married history, but only as to the policy of publishing such a history at all. 3d. Mrs. Stowe, on her own admission, returned to Lady Byron whe her history had a history at all. 3d. Mrs. Stowe, on her own admission, returned to Lady Byron the brief memorandum paper which had been intrusted to her with the statement of her opinion that "Lady Byron would be entirely justifiable in leaving the truth to be disclosed after her death, and recommended that all facts necessary should be put in the hands of some persons to be so published." 13d. Lady Byron did, by her last will and testament, executed only a few days before her decease, bequeath to three persons as trustees all her unanuscripts, to be by them first scaled up, afterwards deposited in a bank in the hands of the property of the scaled up, afterwards deposited in a bank in the names of such trustees, and the store of the property o ments, execused only a few days before he decease, bequeath to three persons as trustees all her manuscripts, to be by them, fire scaled up, afterwards deposited in a bank he than no one eise, however nearly connected that no one eise, however nearly connected with her, should, upon any plea whatsoese to allowed to have access to or inspect such documents, which the trustees thereof were alone to make use of as they nightly induce to be best for the interests of her grandenli dren.
